We've taken hostage / startled gunman

ERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — An armed police officer surrounded an Arroyo Drive jewelry store after a young gunman took four hostages in a botched robbery, police said.

The 19-year-old gunman, who had taken five people hostage, was armed with a handgun and a knife.

The gunman, who had taken five people hostage, was armed with a handgun and a knife. He was later identified as a 19-year-old man named John and said he was the gunman. He said the hostages included three men and two women.

He said he went to the store because he believed Van Cleef & Arpels sold him some bogus jewelry, according to Mutual's tapes of the interview.

The bandit appeared to have been caught by surprise when officers, tipped by an employee who saw the gunman on closed-circuit security television, showed up outside the store, Grifffy said.

No shots were reported fired along the street, a magnet for millionaires and movie stars that is one of the most expensive shopping streets in the world.

In an interview with the Mutual Broadcasting Network, a man who read the store telephone identified himself as John and said he was the gunman. He said the hostages included three men and two women.

Tip foils speech request

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan asked Monday to address the House on the eve of its vote on his request for aid to Nicaraguan rebels. However, House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr. denied the request, saying it would be an "unorthodox procedure," virtually unprecedented in peacetime.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan was "deeply disappointed" that he would not be accorded the opportunity to make a final appeal for his $100 million aid package, scheduled for a House vote Wednesday.

Speakes said White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan had called O'Neill Monday afternoon to ask if the president might deliver a speech to the chamber Tuesday before leaving for a speech in Las Vegas and a week's vacation at his California ranch. O'Neill offered the president an opportunity to appear before a joint session of Congress, which he said would be more appropriate. The speaker said that in so doing, he was continuing "my practice of supporting any presidential request to address a joint session of the Congress. . . . I offered President Reagan the opportunity to do so tomorrow (Tuesday), just as I have done upon every such presidential request. . . ."

"I was told by Mr. Reagan that the White House did not want the president to address a joint session, that the White House wants the president to appear before a regular meeting of the House," the statement added. "In 1969, President Nixon appeared sequentially before both Houses on the eve of the Vietnam War protests to thank members for supporting his conduct on the war."

Having the president appear before only one House to lobby for a legislative proposal would be unprecedented," O'Neill said. "The only justification for such an unorthodox procedure would be if the president would use the occasion to participate in open dialogue with members of the body. A formal address should properly be made before a joint session.

"My offer for a joint session remains open," he said. "On Wednesday, the House votes on Contra aid for the third time this year. If the House passes Contra aid in any form, the Senate will have to act on the matter. Since future congressional action must occur in both houses, I believe that the proper forum for an address is the traditional joint session."

Presidential addresses to a single house of the Congress are extremely rare. Speakes said his research showed only a half-dozen or so cases in which a president had gone before the House. Most of the cases he cited involved cases in which U.S. troops were in combat.

The House vote on aid to the rebel counter-revolutionaries known as Contras is expected to be very close. Speakes said Monday the White House was still a few votes short of victory.

Prosecutors drop charges

South Africa treason trial collapses

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Prosecutors dropped charges Monday against the last four defendants in a treason case, without explanation.

Sixteen anti-apartheid activists originally were charged in the case, and Monday's action appeared to mark the total collapse of the case.

Michael Imber, Natal attorney general, gave no reason for dropping charges against Thozimile Gwetwa, president of the South African Allied Workers Union, and union leaders Sisa Njikelani, Sam Kikini and Isaac Ngobho.

They were accused of high treason for allegedly furthering the African National Congress guerrilla campaign against President P.W. Botha's government.

The treason trial began in October in Pietermaritzburg in Natal province. Charges were dropped in November against the 12 other activists arrested in May 1985, including top leaders of the United Democratic Front anti-apartheid coalition.

In other actions Monday:

— The government said two unexploded land mines were found on rural roads.

— A pro-government newspaper said the nationwide state of emergency imposed June 12 will continue, although tough new security laws have been approved and President Botha is expected to sign them into law this week.

— Newsweek correspondent Richard Manning was told to leave South Africa. He was the second foreign journalist ordered out under the emergency.

— An Anglican priest in a white parish said he faces prosecution if he does not evict blacks who took refuge in his church after their shacks were burned down at the Crossroads squatter camp outside Cape Town.

— Two blacks were burned to death by other blacks, raising to 57 the number of people killed since the emergency declaration, the Bureau of Information reported Monday. More than 1,800 people have been killed in nearly two years of racial violence.

The Bureau of Information, the only source of official data under the emergency, said the mines were found Sunday on farm roads in northern Natal and detonated safely by bomb experts.

In Johannesburg, the Citizen newspaper said officials feel unrest has diminished under the emergency and it should be continued indefinitely. It attributed the report to government sources it did not name.

Manning, an American, apparently was ordered to leave because of a Newsweek cover story called "South Africa's Civil War."

Rally debates fair trade legislation

By SHELLY GOLD
Senior Reporter

More than 100 industry-minded people cheered at the prospect of alternative solutions to closing Geneva Steel during a rally for "Save American Industry and Jobs Day" in Orem.

The U.S. government shopping at home and the Fair Trade Act — which is currently waiting Senate approval — were two of the topics discussed at a Saturday rally in Orem.

The Fair Trade Act, passed by the House of Representatives and now awaiting Senate approval, would allow U.S. industry to compete in the international market. Sen. Jake Garn said although he thinks the present bill is a poorly written one, something is needed to make the competition fair.

University of Utah professor, Garth Mangum, referred to himself as a slunk at a picnic because nobody really wanted to hear the economic view. Mangum's comments — fair trade will only mean higher prices for American consumers and will lower the standard of living here — were booed.

BYU professor, Warner Woodworth, said during the panel discussion, "U.S. Steel is assuring Korean jobs. It's unfair, unjust and dangerous to us."

"Congress doesn't want to start a trade war, but the war has already started. And it's on American soil. It's our communities that will be lost," said Woodworth.

Members of Congress, also on the panel, included Sen. Jake Garn, Rep. Howard Nielson, and Sen. Orrin Hatch. In his opening comments, Garn said he had recently been to Detroit to discuss the loss of American jobs to the increased sales of foreign imports.

"After listening to the workers' moan about being put out of a job, I was surprised to see the parking lot was full of imported cars," Garn said.

He called for Americans to be more nationalistic,

Eddie Mayne (at the podium) mediates the panel discussion that included Orrin Hatch and Jake Garn during "Save American Industry and Jobs" rally in Orem.

"We need to be like the Japanese. They are nationalistic as hell, to put it bluntly."

When the microphone was turned over to the audience for questions and answers, the opening question was a rebuttal to Garn's comment.

"Why are the U.S. warships which carry the stars and bars on their sides, made from Japanese steel? If we need to be more nationalistic, it needs to start with the government," one man said.

Another woman who returned last week from a trip to Washington, D.C., with a delegation from Geneva said she and those with her were disappointed in the trip because the Congressmen were unable to give them any answers.

"Charity begins at home and I would like to see the Congressmen support a family on $150 a week," the woman said.

The panel drew more than 100 people. Other activities of the rally included a televised hook-up which originated in Washington, D.C., and joined Orem with nearly 100 other areas which were holding similar rallies.

Laxalt says GOP must hold Senate

ANDY JEAN WOODS

T LAKE CITY — The Republican Party is a shape politically, said Republican Party Chairman Paul Laxalt. However, the GOP would a majority the U.S. Senate because to would be a "complete obscenity" and would "it a living hell for President Ronald Reagan."

At a two-term United States Senator, R. Laxalt, made the remarks during a keynote address at the Utah State Republican Party Convention held Saturday.

Party has experienced some growing pains the last few years, but we have been a leadership over the last three years," he said.

ings are going well. Politically, we're in good shape. If these (November) elections were held we would win. But they're not. There's a lot still going to go under the bridge," he said, encouraged Party members to call friends in where Republican Senate and House seats being hotly contested.

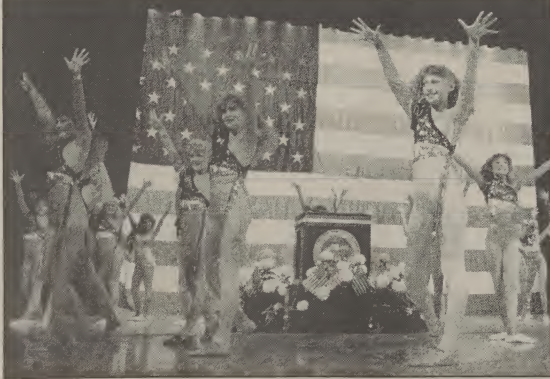

he last election, we secured more votes than position but because of voting the gerrymandering we lost some seats. We need to move to date our power in the state and local government and I predict we will have a Republican of the House in the House of Representatives in 1992," he said.

he ally of policy we are doing very well. We really grew up and are starting to govern should."

At least two significant pieces of legislation seen significant of this "growing up." Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill, to reduce the federal deficit by $5 billion a year, is already in effect despite the Supreme Court's constitutional last week, he said.

Monday, at 4 p.m. the Senate will pass, perhaps possibly, the most dramatic tax reform bill in recorded history," said Laxalt.

well, and it's all because of Ronald Reagan. In our wildest dreams, we never thought he could achieve what he has in the past 5½ years," he said.

"He has been remarkable in terms of restoring respect to the presidency of this country. We all like and trust that man, and we are blessed to have a strong leader."

The hotly contested race for the 2nd Congressional District was headed by Salt Lake County Commissioner Tom Shimizu. He garnered 287 delegate votes, about 40 percent. Second, was Doug Bishop, with 225 votes, about 31 percent. They will face off in an August 18 primary.

The Republican winner will face Democrat Wayne Owens in the November election.

Other Republican contenders were Stan Parrish, chief of staff for Senator Orrin Hatch, who came in third with 200 votes, about 29 percent, and Dr. Calvin Brown and Steve Voris, who both garnered less than one percent of the delegates votes.

Boss can legally fire employee with AIDS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department concluded that an employer can dismiss a person suffering from AIDS merely by voicing fear that the disease will spread in the workplace. According to this decision, such action will not violate a law prohibiting discrimination against the handicapped.

An AIDS-infected worker would have no legal recourse or avenue of redress under the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 if the employer used fear of contagion as a pretext to discriminatorily fire, transfer or demote the worker, the Office of Legal Counsel said in a 49-page opinion.

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act prohibits discrimination on the basis of handicap in any program or activity that receives federal financial assistance.

The opinion made public Monday said that section "simply does not reach decisions based on fear of contagion — whether reasonable or not — so long as it is not in truth a pretext for discrimination on account of handicap."

The opinion was written by Assistant Attorney General Charles J. Cooper, who heads the Office of Legal Counsel, a division of the Justice Department.

Jeff Levi, executive director of the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force, which has 7,000 members, said: "The decision seems to be based on politics and fear, not on good law or good public health."

"The Public Health Service says that AIDS is not transmitted through casual contact or in the workplace," Levi said.

If a person is dismissed from a job or excluded from a federal program solely because he suffers from the effects of AIDS, his dismissal would be illegal — if he is otherwise qualified for the position, said the opinion signed Friday.

Shultz says Marcos welcome to go

SINGAPORE (AP)—George P. Shultz made clear Monday that the United States would like Ferdinand E. Marcos to live elsewhere, and aides said the secretary of state will tell the new Philippine government financial help is on the way.

"Marcos has on a number of occasions expressed his desire to leave the United States and we don't have any desire to have in our country people who don't want to be there," Shultz told reporters traveling with him in Asia. "So under the circumstances, we'd just as soon he leave if he wants to leave."

He added, however, that no other nation had agreed to take Marcos, who fled to Hawaii on Feb. 26 after 20 years as president of the Philippines. Shultz did not respond directly to a weekend report in the Baltimore Sun that Marcos had been asked to leave U.S. territory.

Bundy requests stay of execution

MIAMI (AP) — Attorneys for convicted killer Theodore R. Bundy on Monday asked the judge who sentenced him to death to stay his scheduled July 2 execution.

The bid for a stay was filed with Dade County Circuit Judge Edward Cowart, who sentenced Bundy, 39, to die in the electric chair for a brutal Jan. 15, 1978, rampage through a Tallahassee sorority that left two coeds dead and two other sorority sisters, plus a woman in a nearby apartment, badly injured.

"We're asking for a stay of execution so that we can proceed (with a new appeal of his convictions)," attorney James Coleman said by telephone from Washington.

Gov. Bob Graham on May 22 signed a second death warrant for Bundy, also sentenced to death in the Feb. 9, 1978, abduction-slaying of 12-year-old Kimberly Diane Leach in Lake City, Fla. S. territory.

Ship's waiter identifies Achilles killer

GENOA, Italy (AP) — A ship's waiter testified Monday that Leon Klinghoffer was silent as his wheelchair was pushed across the deck of the Achille Lauro to a armed Palestinian hijacker.

Two shots were fired, Manuel de Souza said, then he and the cruise liner's hairdresser, Ferruccio Alberti, were ordered to dump the 69-year-old American's bloodied corpse on his wheelchair into the Mediterranean Sea.

The Portuguese waiter told Judge Lino Monteverde he could identify the man who summoned him from the dining room, where the hostages were held, and ordered him to bring Klinghoffer out.

De Souza pointed out Youssef Magid al-Molqi, who listened from behind the steel bars of his holding cage in the chamber of a Genoa courthouse.

Molqi claimed in court last week that he did not kill Klinghoffer and that the American was not even on board.

N.Y. disbars former McCarthy aide

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyer Roy M. Cohn, whose career has taken him from the Senate floor as a key aide to communist-hunting Sen. Joseph McCarthy to the side of mobsters over four decades, was disbarred Monday.

The order was handed down by the Appellate Division of the state Supreme Court, which polices lawyers for the state. Cohn is permitted to appeal, said Michael Gentile, spokesman for the state Bar Association.

"Simply stated, four charges involved alleged dishonesty, fraud, deceit and misrepresentation," the court wrote. "After a thorough review of the record, we have come to the conclusion that all four charges should be sustained, and that respondent should be disbarred."

Excedrin poison from same batch

SEATTLE (AP) — The cyanide that killed two residents of Auburn who swallowed Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules came from the same batch of poison but was different from the cyanide used in other tampering cases, federal authorities said Monday.

Food and Drug Administration spokeswoman Susan Hutchcroft said tests on the poison were continuing at the FDA's heavy metals laboratory in Cincinnati.

Cyanide is blamed for the deaths this month of Sue Snow, 40, and Bruce Nickell, 52, who lived a few miles apart in Auburn, a suburb south of Seattle.

The FDA has warned against use of all Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules, and Bristol-Myers, manufacturer of the painkiller, has recalled all non-prescription capsule products, including Datri, Bufferin and Comtrex.

Bristol-Myers has told consumers to send in or otherwise dispose of their Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules, but spokesman John Weisberg said the company was not telling consumers to stop using Datri, Bufferin and Comtrex.

Weisberg said the capsule products would be introduced in the solid caplet form over the next few months.

Officials of the FBI, Bristol-Myers and the FDA have said they believe the tampering was done locally, and steps taken nationally are precautionary.

Doctor, war hero win valor medals

MANDY JEAN WOODS
Senior Reporter

91-year old physician and a World War II hero have been awarded the local Freedom Festival Award for patriotism, service and valor.

Dr. Lloyd L. Cullimore, of Provo, and George E. Wahlen, of Roy, will be presented with their medals at a ceremony June 26 in the ELWC Ballroom.

Wahlen, Utah's sole living Medal of Honor recipient, the highest award for valor in combat, is cited with saving over 60 lives during the war.

Cullimore started the BYU Health Center, and Alcoholism Control Center. Since their founding, both institutions have grown to immense services for individuals throughout the community.

Cullimore has served on Provo's City Council, was elected Mayor in 1959. He twice served as president of Provo's Chamber of Commerce.

Cullimore said while teaching Zoology at BYU, he realized there was a strong need for students to receive health care.

"We started the center in a room next to my zoology classroom. Students came in for all types of problems. Some were sick and others wanted to talk to someone."

Soon, his wife came in to help. The program came under the close scrutiny of the State Department of Health who believed "the whole thing was a bit irregular."

"After their inspection, they gave me their full support and began recommending health centers be established at other colleges in the state," said Cullimore.

Wahlen was a medical corpsman working at the Balboa Naval Hospital in Calif., before volunteering for the Fleet Marine Force, considered suicidal by medics because the enemy had a reputation for shooting them first to hurt U.S. morale.

"Painfully wounded in the bitter action on February 26, Wahlen remained on the battle front, advancing well forward of the front lines to aid a wounded marine and carry him back to safety despite a terrific concentration of fire," wrote Pres. Harry Truman in a commendation.

He cited Wahlen for going above and beyond the call of duty in action against enemy Japanese forces on Iwo Jima.

"I had to make a lot of decisions during the time on Iwo. One thing I remember is that nobody said our job was to take care of men only if it was safe. Each of us had to decide on our own if we wanted to take the risk," he said.

Wahlen said that duty on Iwo was like shaking hands with death. Only three men out of the 240 men in Wahlen's company, returned uninjured from the island.

and he's cheap'

Owens fights liberal image

ALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Democratic congressional candidate Wayne Owens, anticipating Republican charges that he is a big-spending liberal, has launched a campaign portraying himself as a fiscal conservative.

Owens' new television ad and a position paper point out that he voted to trim $14.2 million from the federal budget when he held the 2nd District seat from 1973-74.

$70 billion

Owens has made a list of more than $70 billion in federal budget cuts — some of which would hit the already sagging economy — that he has pledged to consider if voters send him back to Washington in November.

Among them is cancellation of the C-17 military transport plan, a project that is bringing a new McDonnell Douglas plant and up to 200 new jobs to Salt Lake City.

Owens also would support closure of Fort Douglas in Salt Lake City if Congress also closes other military installations considered unnecessary.

In addition, Owens says he supports the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit-reducing bill passed by Congress, and endorses many recommendations in the Grace Commission's report on government efficiency.

Fiscal control is my number one congressional priority," Owens said during a news conference Monday.

But Doug Bischoff, one of two Republicans seeking the nomination to oppose Owens, said the Democrat would be to take responsibility for deficits run up by his party, regardless of the position paper.

'Total record'

This party has spent recklessly and flagrantly without regard for fiscal responsibility. Wayne Owens was a part of the spending Congress and he has to accept recognition of what he was," Bischoff said. "The total record is one of a big spender."

Owens gave up the 2nd District seat in 1974 to run for the U.S. Senate against Republican Jake Garn, then mayor of Salt Lake City. He lost a close race in which Garn capitalized on Owens' ties to Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Owens has been plagued since then by the liberal image. It became a liability in 1984, when he was defeated for governor by Republican Norm Bangerter.

"It's their only real shot at me, and my only real vulnerability, not because it's true, but because it has the potential to be effective if exploited effectively," Owens said.

Owens, a former campaign aide to Sen. Robert Kennedy and former member of Edward Kennedy's Senate staff, contends the image has never been true.

"I think I'm in the mainstream," Owens said.

To prove it, he has distributed a handout quoting from a 1973 speech Owens delivered on the House floor decrying a projected $12 billion deficit in the Nixon Administration's proposed budget.

Detailed cuts

The paper also details Owens' proposals in 1973 to cut $8.6 billion from the budget, and 1974 efforts to cut $5.6 billion.

The biggest cuts advocated by Owens were in the defense budget. The 1973 figure includes a proposed $7.1 billion cut in defense spending supported by Owens and a $3.6 billion cut in foreign aid.

In Owens' position paper possible cuts in domestic spending total more than defense cuts. On defense, he would reduce spending for the Space Defense Initiative, or "Star Wars," by $2.8 billion to $2 billion for fiscal 1987, the C-17 and the Bradley Fighting Vehicle, to name a few.

In the television ad, Owens neighbor, professional actress Mary Nielson, scolds Republicans for calling Owens a big spender.

"I've lived next to him for years, and he's cheap," she says, while a bemused Owens sits in the background looking on.

Man, Universe help nab suspect

When people go out of their way to help us, we like to thank you," said Paul Bringham, of the University of Utah.

He said this in reference to Sorrel Jenkins, who recently ended University Police Assistant Chief, Wesley J. Woodward Monday presented Jenkins with a framed certificate "as an expression of gratitude."

Jenkins, a full-time programmer working in the Tallie building, was riding by Heritage Hall when he saw suspect. "There were several factors involved," said Jenkins. "I had just read the story in The Universe about campus security and had an idea what to look for. I saw that the fellow seemed out of place. For one thing he had a beard and at BYU a beard can be suspicious. As I rode up on him he got a fright. Then I saw that he was near a lot of kids."

Though Jenkins said that any one of those factors could have clued him, the combination caused Jenkins to go to a nearby security phone (a map of security phones ran in a recent Universe) and call for the campus police.

Jenkins said that he has strong feelings about reporting people.

"I figured that those children had a few more rights than that individual," said Jenkins.

'Pageant of the Arts' comes to life

By MANDY JEAN WOODS
Senior Reporter

It's a command performance Utahns have been enjoying for 14 years.

The Utah Pageant of the Arts brings the magic of art—whether painting, sculpture, or tapestry—to life on stage.

"We take well-known artworks and reproduce them on stage. The French call it 'tableau vivant,' or living pictures," said Betty G. Spencer, public relations director and scriptwriter for the pageant since its inception.

It all started with the American Fork Cultural Development Committee to Laguna Beach, Ca., almost 15 years ago.

"Living Art" was originally created by the Pageant of the Masters in Laguna Beach, and they shared their ideas with the Utah group.

The Pageant cost approximately $127,000 to put on this year.

"We get most of our money from the ticket sales and a small grant of $3,900 from the Utah Arts Council," said Spencer.

"All the proceeds go back into the program." The pageant has only one full-time employee.

Spencer said the pageant started with only 15 exhibits and now produces 64 exhibits.

Each performance requires 85 volunteers, not counting the back-stage hands.

Each position is triple-cast, so each performer appears in approximately 10 to 12 performances, said Spencer.

"The part I enjoy the most is finding out why the artist wanted to do a particular painting or sculpture."

Several favorites from the past are reproduced again this year, including "Old Swimming Hole," "Orpheus," "Wedgewood Buckles," "Ministering Angel" and "Beginnings," a painting depicting two little girls preparing for life.

Popular figures from the Hummel Collection and a group of Royal Doulton porcelain figures are also expertly copied and reproduced for Utah audiences.

This year's Pageant of the Arts once again promises to represent art in its truest form, as this young participant illustrates. Performances will run through July 18, except Sundays and July 4 and 5.

A new selection, called "Beyond the Call of Freedom," pays tribute to the nation's soldiers.

"... But Not Forgotten," a statue by Utah artist Clyde Ross Morgan and newly commissioned by the Vietnam Memorial Committee, is one of the pieces depicted.

The Statue of Liberty's 100th birthday is also part of the pageant, and there is a special reproduction of the Liberty Silver Dollar.

The pageant found some inspiration from the Ramses Exhibit and has a special "Treasures from the Valley of the Kings" feature.

Also included are the cosmetic spoon handle, one of the artifacts displayed at the exhibit, a tomb wall, Ramses II Making an Offering and King Tut's Buckle.

Everyone's favorite artist, Norman Rockwell, is another popular feature at the pageant.

"Doctor and Doll" and "The Mermaid," both from the Saturday Evening Post covers, and "Tom Sawyer," the postage stamp, are also reproduced.

All in all, the pageant is well worth going to. It is unlike anything you will ever see.

The professionalism of the production and the obvious dedication of the volunteers who come together to put the pageant on are evident in the careful reproduction of the artworks and the response of the audience.

Today in history

Today is Tuesday, June 24, the 175th day of 1986. There are 190 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On June 24, 1497, the first recorded discovery of North America took place as explorer John Cabot, on a voyage for England, sighted land, probably in present-day Canada.

Yellowstone: skies still friendly

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — Yellowstone National Park officials say they have not had a problem with airplanes flying over the park in Wyoming, Montana and Idaho.

Airplanes and helicopter tours are less common over Yellowstone than over the Grand Canyon, where an airplane and a helicopter collided in air last week, killing 25 people.

Flights over Yellowstone are subject to the same rules imposed by the Federal Aviation Administration over Grand Canyon airspace, Yellowstone spokesman Greg Kroll said last week.

The FAA asks fixed- and rotary-winged aircraft to stay at least 2,000 feet above natural features in Yellowstone, and most aircraft comply with that request, Kroll said.

"To this point, overflights have not been a problem in Yellowstone," Kroll said.

The biggest potential for problems in Yellowstone comes from filmmakers who want to dip below 2,000 feet to film natural attractions, Kroll said.

The park gets two or three requests a summer from filmmakers and generally grants the special exceptions, he said. Filmmakers still must observe the 500-foot limit that is imposed by the FAA over other open spaces.

Highway accidents claim five in Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Five people died and one was critically injured in weekend highway accidents in four counties, officials say.

In Duchesne County, a woman was killed and a man seriously injured late Saturday when the motorcycle they were riding left the Lake Borehan Road between Myton and Duchesne and was airborne about 300 feet before crashing. Utah Highway Patrol officials said.

UHP Trooper Heber Smith said Rosanna Conetah, 23, Myton, a passenger on the motorcycle, was killed. In Salt Lake County, a 24-year-old Salt Lake City woman was killed early Sunday when her four-wheel-drive Jeep skidded off the road and rolled in thick underbrush about one-half mile west of Snowbird.

Salt Lake County Sheriff's Deputy Bob Petersen said Tina M. Clark was transported from the accident scene to Alta View Hospital, where she was pronounced dead on arrival.

In Tooele County, a Tooele couple was killed and a Dugway teen was critically injured in a head-on collision on Utah 36 near Bates Canyon Road.

UHP Trooper Larry Rupp said the pair were dead at the scene.

In Weber County, a 15-year-old Ogden boy was killed late Saturday when the pickup he was riding in rolled on Utah 39 near Snow Basin resort.

Tabernacle Choir to perform nationally

By MANDY JEAN WOODS
Senior Reporter

The Mormon Tabernacle Choir will be featured nationally and locally during the celebration for the Statue of Liberty's 100th Birthday and the country's 210th anniversary of its independence.

According to Jerold D. Otley, choir director, all the performances, except one, will be open to the public.

"It is quite natural for the Choir to be requested to perform in patriotic celebrations. This seems to be a time when people turn to the Choir," he said.

"Three presidents have referred to the Tabernacle Choir as a national institution. They have performed at the White House five times, participated in three presidential inaugurations, and they have sung for all the presidents this century," he said.

They have performed at most patriotic events like this in recent years, said Otley. "Of course, we are a little busier this year because of the Statue of Liberty celebrations."

Utahans will have the opportunity of hearing the 340-voice Choir on national television or in person.

The Choir's schedule for the independence weekend includes an appearance on NBC News Special on the Statue of Liberty Centennial celebration, Thursday, July 3. The one-hour special will be seen at 8 p.m. EDT and will be hosted by Tom Brokaw and Bryant Gumbel.

The Choir will sing "An American Tribute" and "This is My Country."

On July 4, they will appear at the Freedom Festival in Provo. Otley said the Choir will use a pre-recorded orchestral track and sing live with it to ensure good sound.

They will sing "God Bless America," "American Tribute," a medley of five songs, selections from new material written for this year from a larger work called "Liberty," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and "America the Beautiful."

Otley said they will also sing a medley of patriotic folk songs and have a salute to the Armed Forces. The Choir will perform at the Freedom Festival with about 4,000 members of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, or better known as the Barbershoppers.

The Choir has taped special selections to be used during the live CBS News Special Reports on the Statue of Liberty Centennial activities that same evening (July 4). The program, anchored by Dan Rather, will be aired from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. EDT.

On Sunday, July 6, the choir will present a special concert during its regular radio-TV broadcast.

Mayor of Paris unveils bronze Liberty replica

PARIS (AP) — A 52-foot replica of the Statue of Liberty, restored to shiny health after a century of corrosion and war wounds, was unveiled Monday by Premier Jacques Chirac, accompanied by military bands and cheered by Parisians lining the banks of the River Seine.

From a boat moored in the river, Chirac pulled a cord removing giant French and American flags draped around the statue, which faces West toward the New World from the tip of the Ile aux Cygnes — Isle of Swans — downstream from the Eiffel Tower.

The bronze statue was a gift from Americans in Paris in 1885, one year before her more famous sister was placed on her pedestal in New York Harbor. The Paris statue suffered much the same kind of age and weather damage as New York's Miss Liberty, which was a gift from France.

The Paris statue, which is about one-third the size of the New York one, also had a big gash in the right shoulder, apparently caused by a stray shell during World War II.

French officials are taking every opportunity to emphasize France's historic ties to the monumental statue and to the American Revolution, partly in an effort to soothe resentment felt in the United States when France refused passage to American fighter planes on their way to attack Libya last April 15.

President Francois Mitterrand is going to New York for next week's ceremonies, which will be followed by a French-sponsored Festival of Liberty starring the Paris Opera Ballet and tightrope walker Philippe Petit, among others.

Chirac, who serves as mayor of France's capital city as well as premier of the national government, said in a speech at City Hall that Liberty's centennial "provides us once again with the opportunity to recall the exceptional bonds which unite us."

U.S. Ambassador Joe M. Rodgers, said the Statue of Liberty celebrations were well-timed to replace memories of recent differences between France and the United States with recollections of past connections.

"We couldn't have had this celebration at a better time," he said. "Remembering our friendship, remembering how the French assisted us in our revolution, remembering how we assisted the French in two world wars — we lost blood together three times defending freedom — that's all really important. So I think this will help," Rodgers said.

The Paris replica, one of many versions of sculptor Frederic Auguste Bartholdi's giant creation erected around France, carries a book in her right arm with gold inscriptions showing the dates July 4, 1776 — same as on the Miss Liberty in New York Harbor — and July 14, 1779, marking the storming of the Bastille, the key date in the French Revolution.

Judge: crue to sustain life wracked with pain

TOMS RIVER, N.J. (AP) — A judge ruled Monday that a terminally ill, 37-year-old woman can be disconnected from a respirator, as she has requested, because it would be cruel to sustain a life "so wracked with pain."

Superior Court Judge Henry H. Wiley issued his decision after hearing arguments in the case of Kathleen Farrell, who has Lou Gehrig's disease and has said through her husband she is concerned about the effect her illness is having on him and their two teen-children.

Wiley stayed any action in the case pending appeals, and an attorney appointed by the judge to represent the interests of the children, John Gerson, said he will file an appeal with the New Jersey Supreme Court on Tuesday.

Mrs. Farrell, who learned three years ago that she was dying, was mentally competent to decide whether to continue her life, Wiley said.

"It would really be adding insult to injury" to force her to continue a life "so poor to mind and so wracked with pain," the judge said.

Earlier Monday, Mrs. Farrell's husband, Francis, told the judge she had vowed not to die after she learned she had the disease but when an experimental treatment program for her was stopped in November, "she told me she was going to die."

"She made the decision on her own free will," he testified.

Farrell, 37, had asked Wiley to appoint him as a special medical guardian with the authority to disconnect the respirator.

Farrell also sought a declaration that his wife is mentally competent to decide whether her treatment should be continued, and that if she should die as a result of withholding treatment, he and anyone who helps him be exempt from criminal or civil liability.

Farrell has said his wife is concerned about the effect her illness is having on him and their two teen-age sons.

Wiley visited Mrs. Farrell last week after her husband's attorney, Joseph Purrazzella, filed the court complaint.

Her physician, Dr. John Pino, estimated she will not survive another six to 12 months if her current care is continued. He said there is no chance she will recover. She lost her ability to swallow several weeks ago.

Pino, who has refused to disconnect the respirator, testified she would suffocate if the device is removed and that death might be painful. He aided, however, that he has agreed to try to relieve any suffering in the event she is removed from the equipment.

Parents urged to get children immunized

Utah Department of Health officials strongly urge parents to take advantage of vaccination services and protect their children from vaccine preventable diseases.

The Utah School Immunization Act, enacted in 1962, requires that students in kindergarten through twelfth grade and children attending licensed child care facilities must be immunized against seven childhood diseases before attending. Exemptions may be allowed for medical, religious or personal reasons.

According to the Department of Health, the adoption of school immunization laws, probably more than any other factor, has been responsible for the dramatic improvement in immunization levels and decline in childhood diseases.

In 1985-86, 98.8 percent of Utah's kindergarten students were fully immunized. This represents a decline from last year's 94.3 percent. The minimum goal nationally is 95 percent.

Recent adverse publicity regarding reaction associated with DPT (Diphtheria, Pertussis and Tetanus) vaccine may have contributed to the lower immunization levels and the largest outbreak of pertussis (whooping cough) in Utah since 1964. In 1985, 60 cases of pertussis were reported in Utah, compared with only seven in 1984.

The American Academy of Pediatrics and the U.S. Public Health Service Immunization Practices Advisory Committee has re-emphasized that the risk from pertussis disease is much greater than any risk from the vaccine. All medical groups continue to strongly recommend DPT vaccine for all children under seven years of age who have no valid medical reason for not receiving it.
